Introduction

This guide is an information and referral resource for people who are involved in coordinating community-based dental services for developmentally disabled, elder and low income persons. It is divided into two sections. The first section includes a directory of dentists and health facilities that treat these populations; transportation services available to these groups; and area offices of state human service agencies that provide case management services. The second section lists programs which provide services that increase access to dental care for these individuals. Some of the services include financial assistance, reduced fees, interpreters for hearing impaired people and referral assistance.

Description of Developmental Disabilities - Types and Severity

A developmental disability as defined by federal guidelines is a severe, chronic disability which is attributed to a mental or physical impairment; is manifested before the person reaches the age of twenty-two; is likely to continue indefinitely; results in substantial functional limitations in three or more of the following areas of major life activity; self care, receptive and expressive language, learning, mobility, self direction, capacity for independent living, and, economic self-sufficiency; and, reflects the person's need for a combination and sequence of special interdisciplinary or generic care, treatment, or other service which are of lifelong or extended duration and are individually planned and coordinated.

Dentists listed in the directory were asked to indicate the developmental disabilities and the severity of the disabilities they are willing to treat. This information will help you make referrals to an appropriate provider of care. The developmental disabilities included in the directory are mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and physical and multiple handicaps. Behavioral disabilities are also included, according to their level of severity, moderate or severe. Using this directory, an emotionally disturbed person would be referred to a dentist treating moderate behavioral conditions and an autistic person to a dentist treating severe behavioral conditions. Descriptions of the developmental disabilities included in the directory follow.

Mental Retardation

Significantly sub-average general intellectual functioning level existing concurrently with deficiencies in adaptive behavior. This disability usually is manifested during the early stages of development.

The severity of mental retardation can be categorized by a person's ability to express and comprehend abstractions.

- | | | |
|----------|---|---|
| mild | - | communicates in full sentences (verbally or manually); expresses needs, wants and feelings; comprehends multiple-part directions. |
| moderate | - | short attention span, emotional lability, communicates in short phrases; expresses concrete needs and wants in the present; comprehends simple directions. |
| severe | - | poor self-help skills (often problems with feeding, dressing and toileting); communicates with single words, if at all; understands only very simple, one-step concrete directions which often must be accompanied with gestures. |

Cerebral Palsy

A group of non-progressive disorders caused by brain damage that occurred prenatally, during birth, or in the postnatal period before the central nervous system reached maturity. The brain damage manifests itself as a malfunction of the motor centers and is characterized by impaired movement, stiffness, muscle weakness, incoordination, and other disorders. Learning difficulties, psychological problems, sensory defects, and convulsive behavioral disorders of organic origin may be present.

Epilepsy

A central nervous system disorder marked by transient periods of unconsciousness or psychic disturbance, twitching, delirium, or convulsive movements. The most common types of epileptic conditions are:

- generalized tonic clonic - a convulsive seizure (also know as "grand mal")
- generalized absence - short lapse of attention (also known as "petit mal")
- complex partial - altered consciousness and automatic behavior (also known as "psychomotor").

Physical Disability

An anatomic and/or neurological deficiency either congenital or induced by injury or disease after birth. Cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, and orthopedic impairments are examples of physical disabilities. The severity of a physical disability can be categorized by the degree of muscle control and coordination.

- mild - ambulatory with braces and/or crutches but with slight motor or physical anomalies; good functional hand control and coordination.
- moderate - wheelchair bound; some functional hand control and coordination.
- severe - wheelchair bound or bedridden; little or no functional hand control or coordination.

Behavioral Disability

Difficulties in the appropriateness of social interactions. The severity of behavioral disabilities can be categorized by the degree of anti-social behavior.

- | | | |
|----------|---|--|
| mild | - | given to verbal outbursts not exceeding 35 minutes; responds to verbal interventions especially with familiar persons. |
| moderate | - | mild physical aggression; hits without intention of hurting; may need physical intervention or mild sedation; behavior escalates in a predictable fashion. |
| severe | - | abusive to self or to others; needs mechanical or chemical intervention; needs two persons to escort; behavior escalates in an unpredictable fashion, (ie autism). |
